What is a PBRN?

A PBRN, or Practice-Based Research Network, is a network of clinicians and investigators dedicated to improving the health of a community by translating research findings into clinical practice. Evidence-based research findings are disseminated through the PBRN to inform and drive clinical care.

Network Benefits

- Learn about new innovations that will improve the care provided to patients
- Professional Development opportunities
- Lead quality improvement studies to improve clinic operations and the delivery of care
- Collaborate with members on clinical trials and investigator-initiated studies
